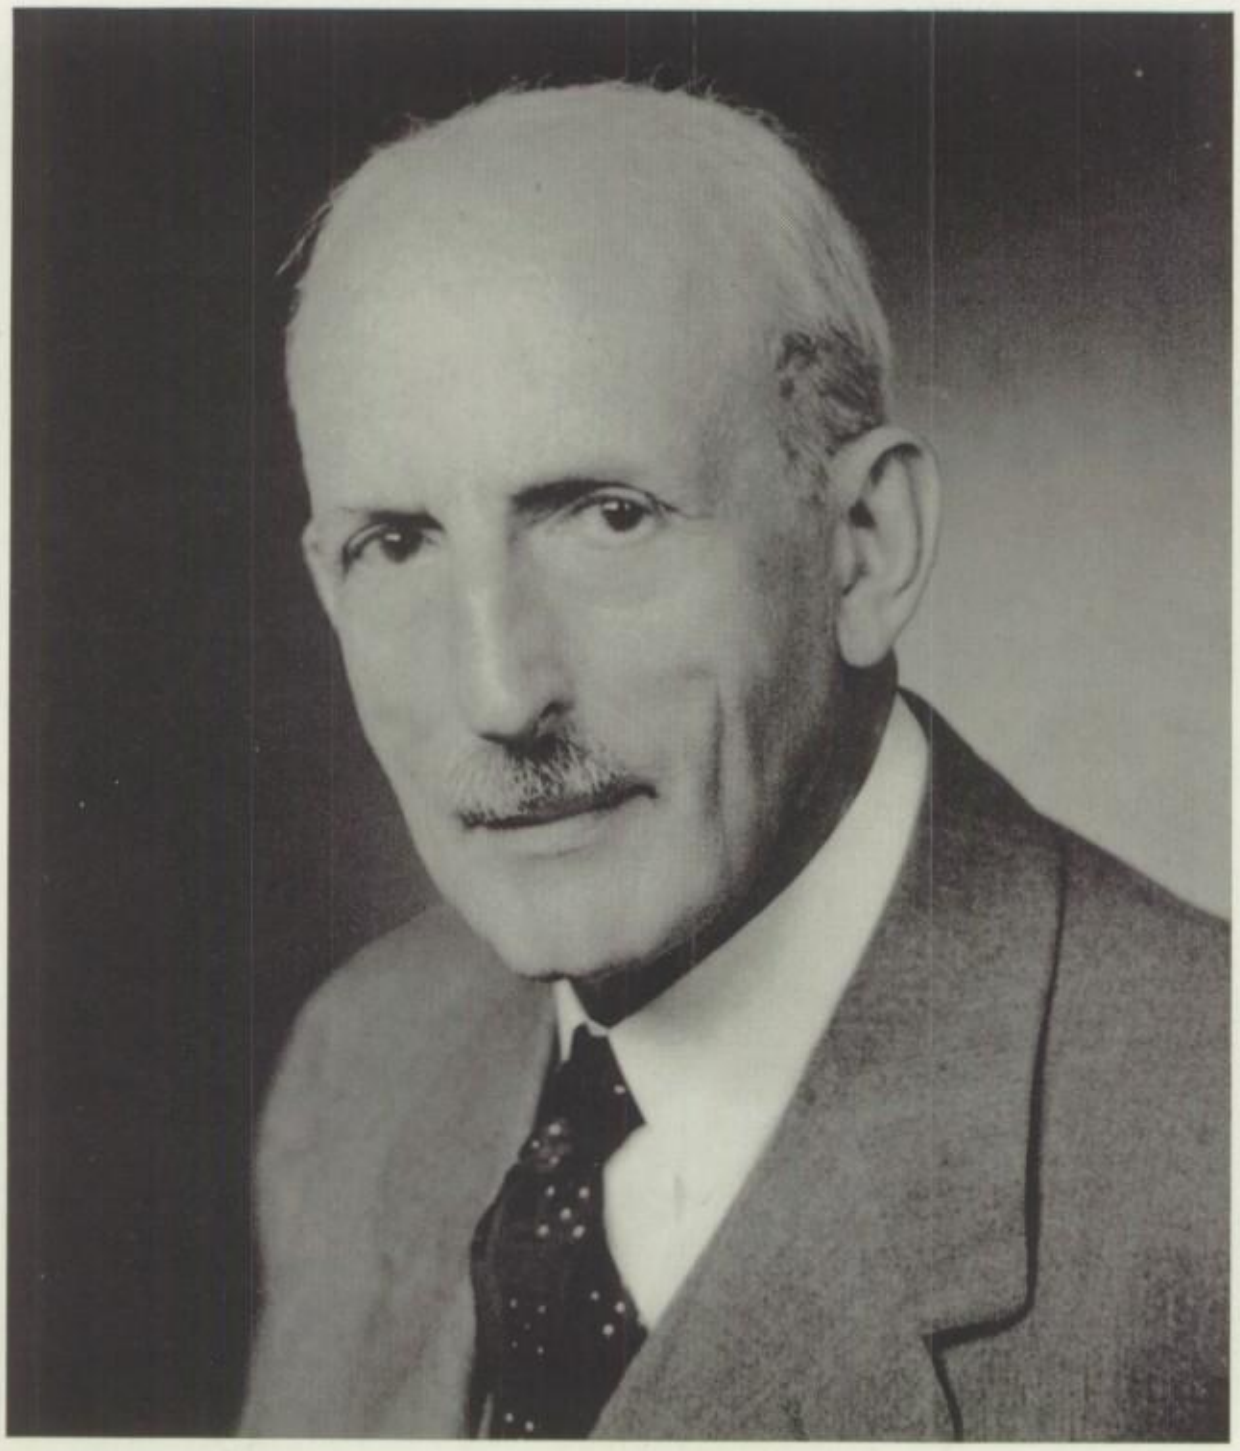
After many years of devoted service



Above: Mr. Leonard P. Stewart

The guidance and leadership of a remarkable man were lost when Mr. Leonard P. Stewart retired last spring as principal of Walnut Hills after eighteen years of devoted service. Mr. Stewart came to Cincinnati following extensive training at three universities. He served as Assistant Superintendent of Schools and principal of six Cincinnati schools before becoming principal of Walnut Hills. During his administration he was a friend and adviser to all. He has labored tirelessly to preserve Walnut Hills' educational standards and has been rewarded by the success of innumerable graduates. He has helped to maintain the spirit of the athletic teams and has encouraged participation in all extracurricular activities. We know that we can never repay a man who has helped us in so many ways; but in dedicating this annual to him and seeking to recall the advances made during his years as principal, we are expressing our gratitude and respect.

Mr. Stewart enjoys his retirement

Now that his official duties as principal are completed, Mr. Stewart is able to relax and enjoy his well-earned rest. In his new home in the suburbs he enjoys the pleasures of a peaceful family life. The television set given him by the school affords an opportunity for many hours of quiet enjoyment, while reading and writing also occupy his time. Outdoor work delights him, and he may also be seen busily engaged in his work shop. This year an outstanding honor came to Mr. Stewart when the degree of Doctor of Human Letters was conferred on him by Kenyon College, Gambier, Ohio.

Our school stands proudly on the hill

Rising high on the hill above Victory Parkway, Walnut Hills High School affords an impressive picture. In 1931 the completion of this building fulfilled the dreams of those who attended the original school built in 1895 on the corner of Ashland and Burdett. Modeled after the University of Virginia, the school has thirty-one rooms, and a fine auditorium and gym. The counselor's office has been the only addition to the school. This spring Walnut Hills took on a brightened appearance because of a complete painting job, the first since 1935.

The dome rises amid a natural setting

The appearance of our modern, well-proportioned school building is augumented by its picturesque setting. Twenty-six acres of rolling, wooded hills, open green fields, ample athletic facilities, the teachers' and students' parking lots, and our new four-lane driveway constitute the attractive school grounds. As originally planned, the football field was to be located across Jonathan Avenue, while a hard ball diamond was to be built where the track and football field is now located. Our spacious intramural fields were to have been a large parking lot. The Walnut Hills campus garbed in autumn's vari-colored robes or spring's new foliage is a memorable picture.

Walnut Hills serves a changing city

In the last eighteen years Cincinnati has expanded almost beyond her seven hills. She added a jet engine factory to her many diversified industries. Streetcars were replaced by trolley buses as part of the Master Plan. This score of years has seen the rise of the Terrace Plaza and the Cincinnati Gardens. The Mount Adams incline was abandoned, and Laurel Homes was built as a step toward slum clearance. Despite the many changes of a mechanized era, Cincinnati still maintains its cultural traditions of a Queen City.

A mechanized era speeds our lives

Cars, cars, and more cars! Each morning for years hundreds of them have formed an orderly procession around the circle. Each year these cars become more streamlined, yet they are but a part of the vast improvements in mechanical civilization during the last eighteen years. Television, one of the latest additions to the national scene, brings to the eyes of millions the best in drama, sports, and news. Research on atom and hydrogen bombs and development of jet propulsion are further advances in science. Lions in your lap recall the recently popular three-dimensional movies. These and hundreds of other discoveries have added convenience and enjoyment to living.

The years bring new ideas and styles

High school students have always had the same basic habits, but new ideas have constantly arrived to vary the scene. Twenty years ago boys in blazers walked middy-clad girls through the halls; today levis and skirts and sweaters have won popular approval. In the recreational field bop has stolen addicts from jazz while the Charleston has given way to jitterbug. New fads have followed each other in rapid succession from 1934 to 1953, but the high school years remain a happy, challenge-filled period, certainly a time to be remembered.

First bell opens the day's activity

Milling crowds in the main hall, the hubbub of greetings to new arrivals, lines in front of the supply store — such sights and sounds launch another day at Walnut Hills. Last minute errands must be attended to and overnight books returned. The 8:20 bell stills the clamor, and the familiar voice of Mr. Schroeder greets the student body with the morning's announcements. Soon, at the ringing of the bell, the halls are again filled with students hurrying to classes, and the school settles down for a day's work.

which continues until late afternoon

Lunchtime!—perhaps one of the favorite parts of the school day. It is a chance to relax with friends, as well as enjoy a meal. At noon the corridors are always humming with activity as students gather in the hall to talk or rush to their lockers to change books. At the ringing of the fifth period bell afternoon classes begin. Finally three o'clock comes and school is dismissed. Some students hurry home, while many others stay for the various extracurricular activities. It is late before the halls are finally quiet.

Faculty

Mr. Stewart, retired after eighteen years at the helm of Walnut Hills, and Mr. Schroeder, newly embarked on the job of principal, can both look with pride on their fine faculty. Our staff of some 68 teachers has a leading role in fostering the spirit and desire for learning which characterize this school. Starting with sound basic academic training, the faculty has sought to broaden the student's learning while at the same time showing him applications for his new knowledge. Out of the classroom as well, our instructors have spent uncounted hours coaching teams, directing plays, and advising the myriad activities of the modern school. Whether honored veterans of many years at Walnut Hills or new arrivals in '53, our teachers seem to have caught the vision of an education which develops the well-rounded personality. Certainly we thank our teachers, but it is for us to show by future effort and achievement how much their guidance has meant to us.

Familiar faces but in new positions

"Treat the school as if it were your own home." All of us associate this quotation with Mr. Henry W. Schroeder, who in his first year as principal, has endeared himself to all Walnut Hills students. His ability as a leader has been proved in his four years as assistant principal. All of us who have come in contact with him as he performed his many duties have learned to admire and respect him. His importance to Walnut Hills cannot be overestimated. To the juniors and seniors he is an invaluable adviser when the inevitable question of college choice arises. To the freshmen and sophomores he is a guide at a time when the business of correct program planning seems most confusing. He is the guiding hand of the lower school, aiding them in the important adjustments needed to acclimate them to life at Walnut Hills. And to the entire student body Mr. Schroeder is the jovial, efficient administrator, ever working to maintain the high scholastic standards and school spirit which have always characterized Walnut Hills.

Mr. Howard Luedeke, our newly acquired assistant principal, performs his duties with an efficiency and amiability beloved by the entire school. Boys' discipline, Student Court, Traffic Squad, and the bookroom are vital functions of the school which he so ably supervises. As Faculty Manager of Athletics, he takes deep interest in our teams and school spirit. Mr. Luedeke is extremely appreciative of the cooperation shown him in his new office. In the future he would like to see Walnut Hills retain its fine traditions and high standards. Under his good judgment and unwavering attitude of interest we are sure that Walnut Hills will attain this goal.

Expert counselors in personal guidance

Many a frightened effie has received encouragement and aid from Miss Olive Clarke, our Dean of Girls. Miss Clarke finds time for these personal relationships with the students, although she is kept busy sponsoring Girls' League, Big Sisters, Student Aid, and Student Ushers. She also serves as hostess to visiting college representatives, and through her vast experience and acquaintance with campuses and personnel across the country, she is able to give advice regarding college choices and careers. Alumni often return to Walnut Hills to thank Miss Clarke for her expert guidance.

Since his arrival last fall, Mr. John Owen has given much-needed advice and guidance in his position as Boys' Counselor. The principal job which Mr. Owen has is advising boys concerning school and personal problems. He also helps boys in educational and occupational choices for the years after their graduation from Walnut Hills. Mr. Owen gives valuable assistance during the weekly homeroom guidance periods. Among his many duties at school, Mr. Owen is adviser for the Big Brothers. This fall he originated and conducted a "How to Study" course for the lower school.

Capable instruction in language arts

Appreciation and expression — these two words might well serve as the keynote of the English department at Walnut Hills. Students learn to understand and enjoy the prose classics from "Treasure Island" to "The Scarlet Letter" and also to appreciate poetry, drama, essays, and biography. They learn to express their ideas through written compositions and class discussion. By continuing their study of grammar, students become more fluent in their use of the English language. The senior source theme climaxes preparation for college.

By variations in the course of study, the English department has helped Walnut Hills to be a modern and progressive high school. Galsworthy's "Man of Property" and Hardy's "Return of the Native" have replaced books like "Henry Esmond" by Thackery. Poems by Milton have been taken from the curriculum in favor of Benet's "John Brown's Body. Recently the source theme was introduced in place of the briefing of a formal argument.

develops facility and appreciation

Making up the front page of the Chatterbox seems impossible to Journalism I students. However, as they learn to write leads and headlines and to understand newspaper style, this assignment becomes more reasonable. Pupils are also taught what to expect of our city newspapers. Speech students are trained to voice their thoughts effectively and are instructed in the use of a microphone and in speaking before an audience. Special speech students make a more detailed study of dramatics and present an assembly each year.

Writing for the Gleam, interpretations of Shakespeare, and heated debates carried on after school were the motivating forces behind our present well-established and outstanding departments of speech and journalism. As a result of increased interest in these activities, courses in journalism and speech were offered for the entire school. These departments now provide the best practical backgrounds in the media of speaking and writing.

Latin fosters our classical tradition

The living language of the Latins is the basis for the classical curriculum of Walnut Hills just as Roman architecture provides the plan for the school building. In the seventh and eighth grades Latin students are taught grammar fundamentals through stories of Roman life and mythological tales. Ninth grade pupils are introduced to Caesar's Gallic campaigns and sophomores enrich their Latin vocabularies by studying Nepos and Cicero. The poetry of Ovid is read during the eleventh year course while seniors come to appreciate the beauty of the Latin language as used by Virgil.

When Walnut Hills became a college preparatory high school in 1919, Latin was made a required subject for the junior high. Within the past twenty years the stress has switched from excessive grammar study to more literature, which has given the student a greater sense of the reality of Roman life. The study of derivatives reveals the dependence of English on Latin. Preliminary Latin also aids many in later study of the Romance languages. Latin Weeks sponsored by the lower school also develop interest through model displays and posters.

Modern tongues give a global outlook

As the United States becomes increasingly involved in world affairs, modern languages in the high school curriculum are taking on added importance. The history of the past two decades has had a great effect on modern languages at Walnut Hills. When Germany invaded France in 1940, the enrollment in F r e n c h classes decreased and German was discontinued. After the war, the study of the languages of these two countries regained their popularity. Spanish has grown in importance during the last decade because of an increase in foreign relations with Latin-American nations.

RIGHT: French students receive classroom instruction amid a realistic atmosphere of French mottos and murals.

The modern language department at Walnut Halls offers complete courses of s t u d y in Spanish, French, and German. From this study we learn the culture and customs of the nations where these languages are used as well as the languages themselves. French has always been recognized as the language of cultured people. German is of great importance, particularly to students who plan to enter medicine and related fields of science. Our close relations with South America and Mexico have increased the popularity of Spanish, and its opportunities for use in business are growing daily.

Precision of science and mathematics

ABOVE: Mrs. Fannie Barnett, Miss Marie Becker, Mr. Richard Bourn, Mr. Denzil Carpenter, Miss Janet Kemme, Mr. J. Stanley Leeds, Mr. Kenneth Scheurer, Miss Florence Silverstein.

Mathematics is a universal language which sets up standards of knowledge, analysis, and a technique for arriving at accurate conclusions. In the lower grades fundamental applications of arithmetic are reviewed. The basic skills of algebra constitute the ninth grade course. In the tenth grade, demonstrative geometry is the central theme, while mathematics in the junior year includes advanced algebra and elementary trigonometry. In the senior year algebra and trigonometry are continued, and solid geometry is introduced.

Since 1934 there has been a complete change in the junior and senior mathematics courses. Algebra and solid geometry in the junior year and trigonometry and algebra in the senior year were found unsatisfactory, especially in preparing for college boards. For this reason a full year of algebra was made available to college board candidates. When this course proved more successful, it was introduced for all juniors, and the senior course was changed.

develops our powers of reasoning

Science, an ancient and yet very modern study, is now a key point in high school education. Walnut Hills is particularly fortunate in having very fine equipment plus the guidance of excellent instructors. The teachers seek to give their students a broad understanding of scientific observation and experimentation, as well as the specialized knowledge of biology, botany, zoology, physiology, physics, and chemistry. The basis of a life-long scientific interest is often discovered in our laboratories.

In the field of science the world has made huge strides forward during the last eighteen years. The science course has been redesigned to fit the changing world with the introduction of such studies as antibiotics, disease resistant plants, genetics applied to human inheritance, electronics, jet propulsion, and atomic energy. Walnut Hills is proud of having a very up-to-date curriculum in science and well-equipped laboratories.

We benefit by study of past cultures

The subjects of history and social studies are valuable, for they furnish a background for the events of today and an understanding of people in other parts of the world. In studying history we develop good citizenship which is so important in maintaining an efficient government. Pupils at Walnut Hills have an advantage, for this is the only school which offers separate courses in ancient and medieval and modern history. In the seventh and eighth grades, a study of American history is made. In the upper grades, history is continued with world history, American history, and economics and sociology.

As we glance back through the ages, we can see the great truth in that familiar phrase, "History repeats itself." Nevertheless it is possible to profit from the mistakes of past civilizations so that we may refrain from making similar errors. We also build and improve on the achievements of the past, for our own civilization has merely been handed down from earlier peoples. Although we can never change what has already occurred, we can mold and influence the future along improved lines.

Map study and discussion of current events enrich the social studies course.

The arts uncover creative ability

Both the painted canvas and the musical composition reflect the emotion of their creator. Realizing the need for instruction in these modes of expression, Walnut Hills begins its art and music courses in the seventh grade. Drawing and painting in various media, such as ceramics, oil painting, and water colors, are important phases of work in the art department. Our music department, led by Mr. Snapp, Mrs. Murphy, and Miss Schramm, strives for appreciation of all types of music.

Through the years home economics and industrial arts have changed considerably. In the former system ninth and tenth grade girls studied cooking and sewing two periods a week as part of a social studies credit, while printing was included as part of the boys' curriculum. This system was continued until 1941. Now the girls' course includes baby sitting and techniques of good grooming and manners. Seventh and eighth grade boys learn the uses of wood, metals, and electricity.

Athletic activities vary our studies

The cooperative spirit of fair play and teamwork gained by participating in athletics has never been duplicated. The physical education department at Walnut Hills seeks to develop this spirit as well as strong, healthy bodies. A balanced program of games, calisthenics, and apparatus work occupied the biweekly gym periods, while two fine tile pools were in regular use for swimming classes. Under capable instructors the students learned to put the spirit of fair play and cooperation above winning.

Walnut Hills has enjoyed one of the most complete physical education plants in the city. A large gym, spacious fields, and two swimming pools have proved adaptable to increased school enrollment. Recently there have been experiments in co-educational gym. Another innovation was the making of swimming optional. During the war years athletics proved their worth by developing fitness, timing, and self-reliance in young people.

Classes

Have you ever seen Walnut Hills on a holiday with the corridors empty and dark, and the rooms deserted? The school seems literally dead, deprived of all motion and vigor with the absence of its students. One always pictures the halls crowded with hurrying figures and the classes alive with thought and discussion. The high school certainly exists only for the pupils and it is their standands, interests, and abilities which form the school character. Year after year, entering effies have absorbed the Walnut Hills tradition and graduating seniors have gone out backed by a reputation for scholarship and leadership. Through depression, war, and uneasy peace, some of Cincinnati's finest youth have prepared themselves at Walnut Hills for the places of honor and responsibility in life. And so, studying, making friends, growing mentally and physically, the classes pass beneath the dome. With their continued vitality and spirit, Walnut Hills lives on.

Graduating seniors enjoy

The duties of president of the senior class were carried out by Starr Ford. He also served as a Big Brother and Student Council representative. Membership in Hi-Y and participation on the swimming team rounded out Starr's schedule.

The vice presidency of the senior class belonged to popular Bob Naugle. The presidency of Hi-Y kept him busy in the executive department, while football, Student Council, and Big Brothers completed Bob's activities.

Jeanne Siphron, the efficient class secretary, has shown her executive ability as co-editor of the Remembrancer and president of G.A.A. Participation in Choir, Senior Council, and Student Council also kept Jeanne busy.

Friendly Don Seltz, the capable treasurer, acted as advertising manager of the Chatterbox. As well as being a mainstay to the swimming team and a dependable member of Choir, Don served on business staff of the Gleam.

reminiscences of high school years

With his store of wit and wisdom, "Uncle Tom" Welsh guided this year's senior class.

Learning, laughter, and love of chemistry are all embodied in Mr. Thomas E. Welsh, teacher of chemistry, and capable advisor of the senior class. Unfailingly friendly and good humored, Mr. Welsh teaches the mysteries of chemistry in an informal atmosphere. In the last four years, he has counseled the class of '53 in the Peanuts, prophecy, and prom, plus innumerable minor matters. At graduation the seniors joined in thanking "Uncle Tom" for a job well done.

As the members of the senior class are preparing to leave the halls and familiar rooms of Walnut Hills, many of them look back upon their years as students in the school. They remember those short skirts on the girls and then the bewildering shift to the ankle-length dress. They recall those gnawing hunger pangs before the advent of the candy machines. Among their memories are the excitement caused by the Freshman Party, the thrill of producing the Sophomore Dance and the Peanuts, and the privilege of working on and attending the BA Prom. And what senior can forget the joy and anticipation in hoping to be chosen as a Big Sister; of being on Student Council and performing in the Walnuts; of mastering the Welsh theory of H_2S; of frolicking through Baby Day, complete with water pistol duels and all day suckers? As their senior year whirled by, they realized that it would be the last time for them to participate in the Honor Day and Class Day assemblies. They can now express their gratitude to the untiring teachers who have labored so diligently to give them a fine education and a desire to explore the universe of knowledge. Today they face the future confident and assured; for they know that through their high school experiences, they are better prepared to take their places in the adult world.

Lots of luck, Bob. I picture you as a typical lawyer some day and I'll let you settle all my problems then.

The Juniors stand ready

The responsibility of leading the junior class fell upon the shoulders of good-looking Bill Richardson. A member of the swimming team, Big Brothers, and Chatterbox sports staff, Bill also had a leading role in "Our Town."

Vice president Gary Marcus devoted much of his time to his job as director of the Peanuts of '53. Capable Gary was on Student Court, the baseball team, and acted as associate sports editor of the Chatterbox.

Popular Richie Alexander, secretary of the class of '54, had the honor of being one of the three juniors on Student Count. He served on the executive committee of Big Brothers, and also wrote for the Chatterbox sports staff.

Busy Stephanie Stryker was treasurer of her class. She wrote for the Remembrancer and Gleam, and was a sectional editor of the Blue Book. Showing talent in the musical field, she sang in Choir, Glee Club, and the Peanuts.

to accept the obligations of leadership

Great anticipation perhaps can best describe the feelings of the juniors, who next year will be the leaders of the school. The class of '54 has already proved itself capable by its interest and participation in the school's many activities. The potentialities of the class were revealed in the annual performance of the Peanuts, the fall production of "Our Town," and the school's various musical programs. A number of juniors acquired important positions on the school publications. Outstanding among these publications was the Blue Book, with a staff composed chiefly of juniors. Together with the experienced seniors, the juniors planned the BA Prom, to which they had long looked forward. However, the athletic ability of the class was perhaps its outstanding feature. The juniors participated in swimming, tennis, track, and baseball, and were the backbone of the football and basketball teams. At the games the spirit and attendance of the eleventh grade were quite inspiring. Ably assisted by Mrs. Madge Galbreath for the last three years, the class of '54 has shown through its past at Walnut Hills its readiness to inherit the privileges and responsibilities of the coming year.

CLASS ADVISOR: Mrs. Madge Galbreath.

the sophomores rise

Headliner of the sophomore class was influential Fred Sanders. Former vice president of his class, he proved an excellent leader of the Sophomore Dance. Fred was also on the basketball team and Gleam literary staff.

Smiling Reuben Marmet served as vice president of the class of '55. He held the important post as manager of the supply store, and also contributed his time and energy to football, choir, and other activities.

Serving as secretary for her second year was pert and friendly Nancy Condon. A veteran of three Walnuts, Nancy also sang in Glee Club and was an active member of Current History Club and Y-Teens.

Rodman Noll, who counted the pennies as class treasurer, also participated in basketball and cross country. Along with his other activities, Rod was a sophomore member of Student Council.

to assume new tasks in school and out

Wise and untrained: such contrasting ideas are expressed in the Greek word sophomore and in the Walnut Hills pupils who bear the name. The tenth graders began the year confident of their knowledge, but soon discovered just how much they had to learn. Along with more difficult studies, they took on after school responsibilities which demanded both talent and a will to work. Any member of the reserve football team, composed mainly of sophomores, could tell you that their undefeated season required plenty of practice. In taking their places in A Cappella Choir and Glee Club, other class members found reward for their musical efforts. Tenth graders beginning at the bottom as reporters for school publications gained experience while learning to please demanding editors. All their powers of consideration and decision were called into play in Student Council and in other club meetings. After the hours of organization and promotion for their annual dance, the Soph Sensation, the tenth graders felt repaid by the success of the evening. With a year of preparation behind them, the members of the sophomore class are ready to take their positions as Walnut Hills leaders.

SOPH SENSATION

The freshmen blossom

Alan Wolf, president of the freshman class, has distinguished himself in many fields, with emphasis on athletics. He was on the freshman basketball and football teams; and in the best Walnut Hills tradition, he had an honor roll average.

Jim Ervin, vice president of his class, has shown outstanding ability both as a member of his class and as a student of Walnut Hills. He was active in his homeroom and also was a highlight of the freshman basketball team.

The important office of class secretary was entrusted to Ann Gusweiler. Busy and popular Ann spent a great deal of time in athletics. She was a member of G.A.A. and participated in the colorful Water Pageant.

Dick Levy competently handled the funds for the class of '56. His versatility was displayed by his participation on the freshman basketball team and by his interest in the piano. He also maintained an honor roll average.

as prime promoters of the social arts

A casual observer in the halls of Walnut Hills would notice a group of students clustered at the foot of the stairs. Upon closer inspection he would probably find this group to be members of the freshman class. From their conversation he would learn that as freshmen they were now privileged to elect their high school courses. As their conversing continued, he learned that the school publications and various clubs welcomed them. Separated homerooms seemed to affect them with mixed feelings of joy and disappointment. There was a bubble of excitement about the Freshman Party, their first class project, and of being caught up in the whirl of parties which the sororities and fraternities gave for their rushees. Further listening informed him of their noticeable attendance, spirit, and participation at games and other school events. And he heard that for the first time they could elect their class officers. Finally he learned that they also had the pleasant task of choosing a class adviser and felt most fortunate in their choice of Mr. Fletcher as a guide for the next three years. Thus our visitor left unnoticed, yet he had a good picture of the vital, voluble freshmen.

To George J. Kuehnle III, the freshman class wishes to dedicate this section of the Remembrancer. His teachers remember him for his cooperative spirit and conscientious work. His friends recall his interest in photography and swimming. Those who worked with him on the light crew will remember him as a faithful worker who never shirked his duties. Indeed, all who were his friends or acquaintances will think of him as having been an active member of the class of '56. By the request of his parents, contributions have been made to the George J. Kuehnle III Memorial Scholarship Fund. This worthwhile endowment will send many underprivileged boys from the Children's Home to college. The freshman class has donated generously to this fund. As we turn the pages of this section, let us remember the student to whom it is dedicated.

confusion to order, fear to assurance

In taking the step from the seventh to the eighth grade, the former effies became members of what was once called the "E" class, hence their nickname "e-flats." As leaders of the lower school, they began to realize that school life can be rewarding. They enjoyed more privileges and began applying their learning in extracurricular activities. The English course developed an understanding of literature and composition. A talented few, capitalizing on this experience, wrote Junior Highlights in the Chatterbox. Social studies took on added interest with the national election and the continuing international crisis, and music heightened the enjoyment of Junior Chorus. With the closing of their last elementary year, the e-flats were eager to take their places in the larger field of high school life.

"E" is for eager, which effies are, and for elevators for which they search in their first perplexing days at Walnut Hills. Such familiar sights as tiny people dashing through the halls or staring confusedly at a double whammy on their hall lockers bring to mind immediately the seventh graders. With recovery from the initial bewilderment of Latin, they enjoyed flaunting their knowledge. They worked up a high pitch of enthusiasm over intramurals and found new friends through Junior Latin Club, G.A.A., Girls' League, and Junior Chorus. Their Big Brothers and Big Sisters helped them in their struggles to become an active part of the school and solicitously watched over their grades. With the arrival of June, the effies wrote Finis to a year of change and adjustment.

Activities

The foundation and structure of the building which houses Walnut Hills are not the factors that create the spirit of the school. This spirit is embodied in participation in extracurricular activities. Time spent serving a school, whether it be on playfield or platform, necessarily brings with it a pride in that school. A new world for the ambitious and alert student opens after three o'clock. With groups ranging from the long-established Student Council or Choir to the brand-new Fencing Club, everyone has an opportunity to fit his taste and talents. The chances for dealing with people, for the development of priceless confidence, initiative, and responsibility are as varied as individual ingenuity can make them. High school activities are for many the key to a lifetime of expanding experience.

Staging drives for the March of Dimes or for cleaner halls, conducting class officer elections or polls on school rules—all these as well as many others were jobs labeled Student Council. In carrying out their duties, the high school legislators also learned the advantages and the difficulties of a working democracy. Council met on alternate Thursdays during fourth period under the able guidance of Miss Helen Sanford and president Bob Netting. The school was kept informed of progress by at least one representative in each home room plus several members elected at large from each class. Planning an agenda for the Student Council meetings was the responsibility of Executive Committee, a group composed chiefly of the officers and committee chairmen of Student Council.

This year Student Council adopted the new system of homeroom representation following a vote by the whole school. The plan was considered more democratic and better adapted for use with the homeroom guidance period. This marked the third time that the system of choosing members has been altered. When Student Council was organized in 1928 by Mr. William E. Evans, the representation was on a homeroom basis. In 1935, the Council, under Miss A. Geraldine Curtis, began selecting delegates from each class as a whole. This policy was continued until near the end of last year, when the student legislative body with the guidance of Miss Helen Sanford inaugurated the change. It was felt that greater efficiency and closer cooperation with the school would result from wider representation.

and take action on school problems

The potential leaders and executives in the Junior Student Council gain valuable experience in self government. These eager student administrators, with Mr. Buxton as advisor and Ed Wolf as president, convene on alternate Mondays to discuss matters related to the lower school. Many topics discussed by this group are taken from the student suggestion box. Among the council's projects this year were the acquisition of pins for its members and the distribution of book covers.

The Junior Student Council, a subsidiary organization to Senior Student Council, was first organized in 1935 with Mrs. Madge Galbreath as advisor. Its purpose was for pupils to learn and pass on to others principles of good school citizenship, respect for authority, and belief in law and order. Mrs. Galbreath and Miss Curtis, the Senior Student Council's advisor, tried to promote better feelings between the upper and lower schools. Miss McDevitt and Miss Carson have also served as advisors.

SENIOR COUNCIL, CLOCKWISE: Miss Clarke, J. Siphron, M. West, B. McFarland, R. Perez, C. Mayer.

Ably assisting Miss Clarke in numerous tasks are the five capable senior girls on the Senior Council. Among the duties of this group are the directing on Big Sisters, working with the Parents' Association, Publicity, Student Aid, and the supervision of ushers. One of the unique aspects of Walnut Hills is its organization of Big Sisters. The senior girls prepare the way for incoming effies by acquainting them with various aspects of school life and the school itself. They act as counselors throughout the seventh graders' initial year, helping with troublesome subjects and advising on participation in activities.

Under the guidance of Marvin Fialco and Mr. Luedeke, it meets whenever there is a sufficient number of cases to be tried. Conducting the newcomers through the various initial phases of life at Walnut Hills is the task of the Big Brothers organization. This group is composed of twenty senior and ten junior boys who are chosen on the basis of scholarship, recommendations of teachers, and participation in activities. This year's Big Brothers are under the leadership of Paul Vitz.

Staffs produce the year's chronicle

At last the long-awaited event has arrived—the Remembrancers are being passed out. As students eagerly scan the pages for friends' faces and recognize their own in various pictures, they are inclined to forget the hardworking staffs who are responsible for the production of the annual. Members of the make-up, typing, business and literary staffs combine their talents under the direction of Miss Schroth and the editors to create the publication. To everyone, the Remembrancer is a pictorial history of the events and activities of school life, a history more rewarding with the years.

Scribes report the news of the week

The Activity Room is buzzing with activity every Tuesday morning as the Chatterbox is distributed to the homeroom representatives. Each week's paper is the culmination of the efforts of many writers, reporters, and the hard-working staff, which, guided by Miss Keegan, devotes its Thursdays to making up the pages. Glancing through the Chatterbox, we would see editorials, student sketches, Wally Hill, features, and sports news, as well as the current news. The present paper is quite different from the original mimeographed sheet which originated in 1923. It was published bi-weekly and contained only news and editorials. The present paper is supported by advertisements solicited by the members of the business and advertising staffs.

The Gleam boasts a long history

The appealing slogan, "There's a Gleam in Your Eye," and the eye-catching display of old Gleams in the main hall were used to promote student interest in this year's Gleam subscription campaign. Soft drink sales on Parents' Night and at the Walnuts also supplemented Gleam finances. This year's staff has attempted to encourage more contributions of creative writing by the entire school.

Walnut Hills is proud to boast of the Gleam, the only literary magazine in Cincinnati public schools. The first Gleam was issued in 1896 and was the only Walnut Hills publication. At different intervals the Gleam served also as a newspaper or an annual. The Gleam contains student poetry, essays, and short stories.

Blue Book provides a pocket-size guide

To serve as a complete manual and guide for students of Walnut Hills, a new edition of the Blue Book has been assembled for publication. It will be ready to aid next year's effie class in becoming acquainted with the school. It is also valuable to upper classmen through its coverage of the various subjects offered, the traditions of the school, Student Council's rules, and many other features.

The Blue Book first appeared on the Walnut Hills scene in 1927 to answer the need for a concise guide to the school. At this initial publication proved successful, it was again brought out in 1930 and in 1940. In 1949, editor Doug Cramer and his staff revised and distributed a new Blue Book. The fifth edition containing new diagrams and regulations will be available in 1953.

The real and unreal combine in a world

Mid-December this year again brought forth the best acting talent of Walnut Hills to perform in Miss Frieda Lotze's thirty-first annual production, "A Midsummer Night's Dream." The play, one of Shakespeare's most rollicking comedies, revolves around two pairs of lovers, Hermia and Lysander, and Helena and Demetrius. Their love affairs are completely muddled by Puck, a mischievous sprite who serves Oberon, the fairy king. Into this humorous situation are thrown the Athenian workmen, led by Bottom, who present for the amusement of all a play within a play. All ends on a joyous and festive note with Puck's asking the audience to believe that this has been only "A Midsummer Night's Dream."

of Shakespearean mirth and merriment

During the thirty-one years of Shakespearean plays at Walnut Hills, the annual productions have become well known not only at school, but also throughout Cincinnati. Since Miss Lotze began producing the bard's works, she has expertly tutored over seven hundred Shakespearean actors in the fine art of dramatics with which she is so well acquainted. Many traditions of long standing are linked with this, the only annual Shakespearean play given by a Cincinnati high school. One of these customs is the annual Shakespearean luncheon, which this year was well attended by many alumni and this year's performers, all of whom cherish fond memories of their part in a Shakespearean play.

RIGHT: The opposing forces of fairyland come together for a peaceful moment as Oberon, Roger Strauss, takes the hand of Titania as played by Jane Gillespie.

Walnuts is a treat for ear and eye

Strains of "Rhapsody in Blue" floated over the audience as the Walnuts of '53 made its debut. The continuity centered around the adventures of a small opera company. The rhythmic college marches, the many specialties such as "Wheel of Fortune," "Lover," and "Warsaw Concerto," the high-stepping routines of the pony chorus, the thrilling accompaniments of the orchestra, and many other acts made the Walnuts of '53 a truly distinctive revue. Much of its success can be credited to Director R. Earl Snapp.

Originated as a vaudeville show to aid in paying for printing the Remembrancer, the Walnuts has become one of the most popular events at school. Mr. Merrill Van Pelt and Mr. Wayne Gregory, who are both active in producing the Walnuts, were instrumental in starting the variety show. The boys' and girls' singing choruses have been trained through the years by Mrs. Murphy. In charge of dance routines and pony chorus is Miss Marian LaCour and graduate Barbara Wolf.

Small town life, its humor and pathos,

As its twenty-second annual production, the Junior Dramatic Club chose Thornton Wilder's Pulitzer Prize-winning play, "Our Town." For the first time in several years a break was made from the plays of modern British playwrights to the work of a contemporary American. "Our Town" uses no extensive scenery and at all times presents an almost bare stage. The curtain is not pulled from opening to closing, and the audience is left to be its own scenic designer. The Stage Manager holds the play together and in his easy, informal manner, introduces the characters and sets the scene. The story is one of everyday life in Grovers Corners, New Hampshire, at the turn of the century.

UPPER LEFT: Mike Israel as Howie Newsome delivers milk to Mrs. Gibbs, Eileen Parris, on the morning of the wedding. LOWER LEFT: George Gibbs, played by Bill Richardson, and Emily Webb, played by Kay Simmerman, displayed martial bliss. LOWER RIGHT: The Gibbs and the Webbs meet in church for Emily and George's wedding with Fred Dearworth as Mr. Webb, Carol Ross as Mrs. Webb, Bill Fessenden as the minister, Kay Simmerman as Emily, Bill Richardson as George, Eileen Parris as Mrs. Gibbs, Sue Hattendorf as Rebecca Gibbs, and John Denniston as Dr. Gibbs.

are created in unusual "Our Town"

Through the years that Mr. Stewart's influence guided Walnut Hills, the Junior Dramatic Club produced almost every type of play imaginable, including "Arsenic and Old Lace," and "Junior Miss." This year, with new leadership for our school, an entirely different type of play was presented. "Our Town" was probably the most unusual, and yet one of the most loveable of all. As the audience participated in the lives of these everyday Americans, "their growing up, living, and dying," and as the cast portrayed them, one realized that these simple lines of Wilder, about people living in 1900, will always be remembered. They apply to the lives of all of us today, no matter what "Our Town" may be.

'53 Peanuts shines with junior talent

After several months of preparation climaxed by a frantic week of final rehearsals, the Peanuts of '53 was presented to an appreciative audience on January 9, 1953. This year's production followed the tradition begun when the class of '46 presented its variety show. The show is managed by juniors with no outside aid except that of the class advisor. This year, under the student direction of Gary Marcus and the sponsorship of Mrs. Madge Galbreath, the production proved a success. The continuity concerned a country lad named Woody Dew, who inherited a hotel in the "big city." The pony chorus, horse chorus, and singing chorus combined their talent with many specialty acts to complete this production.

The responsibility of maintaining the high standards of Walnut Hills' dramatic productions is divided between those who perform duties on stage, and those who work behind the scenes. The stage and light crews, as well as the scenery painters, belong to the latter group. The scenery painters can be credited with the sets and backdrops for plays and the B.A. Prom decorations. The technical work and the carrying out of the many details connected with a production are numbered among the duties of the stage crew under the direction of Miss Lotze. The various lighting effects which add a professional air to Walnut Hills productions are the work of the light crew.

Organizations render service to school

Through the years the names of Eagle Y Girl Reserves and the True Blue Girls have been changed to Y-Teens. Nevertheless, the same high purpose and ideals are held. Led by Evey Sanders and Miss Zurlage, the new advisor, Y-Teens continues to be a philanthropic as well as a social organization aiding in the physical, mental, and spiritual growth of the girls. Meeting on the second Tuesday of every month, Y-Teens has planned and participated in Christmas parties for Jackson School and Allen House.

by philanthropic and social activities

The Hi-Y, an organization sponsored by the Y.M.C.A., carries on many outstanding activities at Walnut Hills. The Hi-Y groups were formed before the transfer to our present school building and from the first advocated the twin goals of fellowship and high ideals. Through the years there have been Hi-Y groups from each of the three upper classes. However, at present only the senior class is represented. Led by Bob Naugle and Mr. Buxton, the organization has held discussions on religion, citizenship, and colleges. The Hi-Y joined with the Y-Teens to sponsor several open houses. Highlighting the Hi-Y's activities was the annual sports banquet.

Filling Red Cross chests and boxes and supervising student Red Cross volunteer work are the duties of the Red Cross organization at Walnut Hills. This year the students of Walnut Hills contributed $200 to the Red Cross fund, which helped to buy much-needed articles for people in foreign countries. Coordinating the work of the homeroom representatives was the job of the Red Cross Council, advised by Miss Acomb. Through its active support of the Red Cross, Walnut Hills promoted relief and rehabilition around the world.

By interpreting and broadcasting news

"This morning your script writer and announcer has been the president of the senior class." This statement traditionally ends the last Radio Guild announcement before the Christmas vacation. On every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday the students and faculty hear the highlights of world, national, and local news as reported by the Radio Guild. This group, started ten years ago by students, is advised by Mr. Wayne Gregory. For the first semester qualified seniors prepared the broadcasts. A contest in February selected Roger Strauss and Evey Sanders as the best announcers. The final semester is given over to members of the junior class.

One of the most widely popular clubs at Walnut Hills is the Current History Club. The club started some fifteen years ago as a select group of students who took active part in discussions. Within a few years a great number of students became interested in the club, and the organization expanded, permitting members to observe as well as take part in discussions. Even with the increasing membership, the club has kept its topics on a high plane. Their meetings have included talks by councilmen and high government officials as well as panel discussions by students. By such informative programs, student interest in national and world affairs has been encouraged.

Clubs provide language application,

"Lingua est doctrina" might well be the motto of the Latin Club, for language is the basis of learning in all languages. To broaden the knowledge of the Latin culture, the Latin Club produced a play showing our dependency on Latin in daily life. A program tracing Latin roots into English proved most enlighting. The inspirational address of Dr. McGregor, professor of classics at the University of Cincinnati, was another of the year's highlights.

Gallic wit and wisdom form a background for the gathering of Le Cercle Francais. This year programs stressed French culture through movies and songs, while continental speakers discussed the present day life of France. Meetings from the preliminary radio announcement to the motion for adjournment are conducted in French. The club supplements classroom work and seeks to develop enjoyment and appreciation of the language.

insights into customs of other lands

With the increasing interest in the culture and life of the Latin-American nations, the Spanish Club has acquired a significant position at Walnut Hills. It was founded at the new building in 1932 and was reorganized in 1949. In its monthly meetings "Los Amigos," as the Spanish Club is called, encourages the practice of the language in conversation. During the past year its activities were capably led by Carol Mayer, assisted by Mrs. Creelman.

The German Club, an active organization at Walnut Hills, was begun in 1930 under the sponsorship of Miss Stratemeyer. Guided now by Miss Kitzman and Marvin Fialco, it is open to anyone interested in the German culture and language. The troubled war years taught its members the importance of postwar tolerance and understanding. The German Club, stressing sociability, has included in its program an annual picnic and speakers at meetings.

"Come to the Girls' League show this afternoon in the small auditorium." These familiar words announce a meeting of the Girls' League, an organization open to all girls in the school. Twelve capable senior girls are chosen annually as Cap Leaders. Among their duties are the direction of the programs and the carrying out of various philanthropic projects. Each month under the direction of a Cap Leader, a different class presents the entertainment. This provides opportunities for all to participate, and offers experience in speaking or performing before a group. Miss Olive M. Clarke sponsors this worthwhile group.

Highlighting the year have been discussions of infrared photography, liquid air, and a trip to the local Water Works. The Physics Club was started this year by Alan Shapiro, with Dr. Lambert advising, to create an outside interest in the marvels of physics. Outstanding among its meetings have been experiments on acceleration and a talk on electricity.

Students interested in stamp collecting have a chance to buy, sell, and trade stamps from all parts of the globe in Stamp Club, advised by Mr. Condit. Students fulfill necessary duties

The visual aids operators are on call daily to show slides or movies to classes. The movies series, begun in 1949, present popular feature length films after school. "Christopher Columbus," "Ticket to Tomahawk," and "My Blue Heaven" entertained the movies series subscribers. Proceeds have helped pay for the carbon arc projector. Mr. Welsh and the student manager Jim Zeigler presented the series.

The difficult task of feeding fourteen to fifteen hundred young people daily is successfully accomplished by the efficient lunchroom staff in their neat, airy kitchen. Fourteen women, one man, and twenty-two students under the able leadership of Miss Lipsky, the dietitian, produce lunches capable of causing students to clock-watch expectantly until their lunch time. The Music Appreciation Club gives musically inclined students an opportunity to enjoy and appreciate the various types of music, from jazz to classical music. Their bi-monthly meetings have included speakers of musical compositions, contests, and recordings. The club is advised by Miss Schramm.

Choir maintains a high standard

The A Cappella Choir, under the direction of Mrs. Nelle Custer Murphy, is the largest musical organization at Walnut Hills. Its 150 members include musically talented sophomores, juniors, and seniors. This group is known especially for its fine quality of singing and neat appearance. Practices are held five times a week during the fifth period. This year the Choir again performed at Music Hall with the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra in the Christmas Concert. At Walnut Hills the Choir sang for the annual Christmas assembly, when the members marched down the aisle with lighted candles singing "Adeste Fideles." Besides numerous programs at school, the Choir also performed at the Queen City Club, the Rotary Club, the National Music Teachers' Convention, and at many churches.

of excellence in vocal performance

From the large size of the A Cappella Choir today, one would never guess its meager beginnings. The first Choir was organized by Mrs. Murphy, who has a long record of excellent service at Walnut Hills. The Girls' Triple Trio joined with the Boys' Octette to form the first Choir. It met at noon and after school, spending much extra time at singing. As the popularity of the Choir grew, its size also increased, and it began to meet two times weekly. Today the Choir has 150 members and meets five times a week. The first Choir robes were designed by an art teacher, Miss Geiger, and were made exclusively for Walnut Hills. The Christmas Concert at Music Hall and the May Festival have become traditional appearances for the A Cappella Choir.

Glee Club sings for pleasure, training

Songs ranging from the sacred music of Bach to Fred Waring's lively arrangements are included in the repertoire of the Girls' Glee Club. In the fall, members from grades nine to twelve are chosen by Mrs. Murphy, the director. Meetings are held every Monday after school in the small auditorium. The Glee Club participates in several school concerts, such as the Christmas Assembly and Spring Concert. Members gain valuable experience in vocal work along with a great deal of enjoyment.

Choristers provide ensemble music

Each year Walnut Hills students eagerly anticipate the occasions when they can hear the Girls' Triple Trio sing. These nine talented girls, under the excellent direction of Mrs. Nelle C. Murphy, are selected by tryouts at the beginning of each school year on the basis of musical interests and ability. On Wednesdays after school their sweet harmony may be heard from the small auditorium. Triple Trio appears annually at Spring and Winter Concerts, and many outside organizations. Good close harmony and genial comedy—these are the outstanding characteristics of the popular singing group, the Boys' Octette. In their practice sessions before school these eight boys, under the direction of Mrs. Murphy, prepare a repertoire of both humorous and serious songs which they perform at Christmas Assembly, concerts sponsored by the music department, outside organizations such as the Columbia Club, and on television programs. Tryouts for Octette are held at the beginning of each year.

Under the baton of Mr. Snapp, the orchestra performed for several productions, such as the Spring Concert, the Walnuts, Christmas assembly, and other school assemblies. Several orchestra members achieved outstanding awards in the annual regional contest held in Oxford. The orchestra is self-governing and has its own constitution and yearly set of officers.

Band whips up school spirit

The Walnut Hills band has been a source of enjoyment and team spirit to the student body. Besides playing for football games, the band maintains a fine reputation in the annual Winter Concert. Nearly every autumn morning students hear the familiar strains of "High on the Hill" as the band works on new programs. These stunts consist of everything from the traditional W and H to many complicated and involved formations. Thus our marching band symbolizes Walnut Hills' school spirit.

The Walnut Hills band forms a note as they march to "Play a Simple Melody."

Miss Marie Becker is in charge of determining the averages and directing the annual spring banquet.

Today's young journalists gain much experience by working on school publications. Those who have done outstanding work on publications and who have maintained a B average are honored by membership in Quill and Scroll, a national journalistic society. Members are chosen at midyear and at spring.

An efficient governing body of social organizations, the Interfratority Council was formed in 1950 when social clubs were brought under Board of Education jurisdiction. It meets twice a month to work toward standardization of rules regarding social affairs, eligibility, rushing, and pledging. Coordination between the clubs and school activities has been advanced by this cooperative organization headed by Alan Mandel and Miss Sellers. Presidents or delegates from all the twelve sororities and ten fraternities in the school worked together on many worthwhile projects. They compiled "Who's Who," a social club directory, sponsored the entertaining interfratority sing, and combined forces to advise each other and help the school.

Sports

America has always been sportsminded, but the past eighteen years have witnessed a spectacular rise in individual athletic participation. Golf, tennis, and bowling have shown phenomonal growth with hiking and swimming also popular. The satisfying relaxation and healthful qualities of sports have been increasingly realized as the nation gained more leisure time. The logical period for developing athletic interest and ability, plus the even more important spirit of fair play and teamwork, are the high school years. Walnut Hills takes advantage of this fact by providing a balanced program of sports. Eagle teams turned in competent performances during every season with swimming and basketball especially outstanding. A new student enthusiasm was also evident with larger crowds for the games. The spirit shown on the field and in the stands promises a bright future for sports at Walnut Hills.

Varsity record tops last two years

ABOVE: Withrow converges to down the hard-driving Kendricks.

Under the spirited leadership of its new coach, Mr. Howard Fletcher, the varsity football team had its most successful season in many years. Although winning only two games, at Monroe and at Norwood, the team, comprised mostly of juniors, in addition to several sophomores and six stalwart seniors, displayed the great potentialities of next year's team. The linemen, coached by Mr. Dean Giacometti, must be commended for their fine play in several games. The season, also characterized by greatly increased school spirit, can best be summed up as a qualified success, the beginning of a new era of football strength at Walnut Hills.

The Reserve squad, coached by Mr. Harry Hannum, was our most outstanding football team this year. Showing great spirit and dogged determination, the Reserves copped the P.H.S.L. championship with an exciting 12-9 victory over Central Vocational. Mr. Ken Scheurer's Frosh team, co-captained by Bill Sprinkle and Alan Wolf, experienced a successful year, with three outstanding victories, two losses, and two ties.

Although a quick glance at the scores might indicate an average basketball season, a closer look brings several important facts to light. Of their first eight games, the Eagles were victorious in only two, but those eight games were all that was needed for an inexperienced squad to find itself. In their first year as regulars, the starting five went on a rampage and copped seven of their last ten games. The climax was still to come in the tournament, and a vastly improved quintet, sparked by towering Lou Spitz and shifty Ed Heekin, was in no mood to stop winning. After defeating Roger Bacon, Hamilton Catholic, Norwood, and Elder, the Eagles bowed to St. Xavier, 50-39.

In his eighteen years as principal Mr. Stewart has seen the basketball team headed by Mr. Carl Varrelmann, Mr. Edward Driver, and Mr. Willard Bass. The basketeers of '42, headed by Coach Driver, won the school's first P.H.S.L. title. In 1946 the team under Mr. Bass chalked up sixteen victories against one defeat, while the 1947 team, sparked by All-State center Gene Melzer, boasted an 18-2 record. Since that time Walnut Hills has had consistently good basketball teams.

Bouncy cheerleaders boost spirit

CHEERLEADERS, ROW 1: E. Sanders, J. Evans, N. Holmes, M. Drucker. ROW 2: B. Klein, J. Mendelsohn, S. Chesley, B. Malman.

While preparing for future varsity competition, the sophomore and junior basketeers faced tough competition in the reserve loop. This year the Eagles won half as many games as they lost, with Hamilton, Ehrlich, and Noll performing capably. Three members of the team, Martz, Sanders, and Young, participated in varsity games. Encouraging this and all other major sports was the job of the cheerleaders. These eight blue and gold clad rooters were selected by the student body in an assembly tryout last spring. Their enthusiastic spirit and cheers accounted in a large measure for the increased school spirit.

The Senior Swimming Team, coached by "Whitey" Davis, brought victory to Walnut Hills again this year. The team ended the season undefeated, and won both the city and district championships. Climaxing the year, the tankmen placed fourth in the state meet at Columbus. The team gained twenty-seven points, only two points from second place. Jerry Dolbey was victorious in the backstroke competition, while Bill Richardson placed fourth in the freestyle. The medley and freestyle relays also placed in the State Meet.

Through the years our swimming team has been a constant winner. The Junior team has won the city Championship for sixteen straight years. Sparked by such stars as Dick Thoman, Don Hill, John Phair, Alan Alexander, the Eagles won the state championship in 1950, and placed many times.

Following the example of the Senior Swimming Team, the Junior Swim Team brought another championship to Walnut Hills. Under coach "Whitey" Davis, the junior mermen were victorious in every P.H.S.L. meet. For the fifteenth consecutive year, the team captured the city championship, compiling a total of 134 points in the three city meets. The victories of the Junior Swimming Team this year are indications of the fine teams to be expected in the future.

The baseball varsity composed mostly of juniors and sophomores started well this year, winning in a 3-1 game from West High. The team will see plenty of action with the seventeen - game schedule planned by coach Harry Hannum. At press time, prospects appeared good for the eleven with Charlie Wyatt starring at bat and in the field and pitchers Schacht and Young performing capably.

This year's track team, led by Coaches Ken Scheurer and Howard Fletcher, faced stiff competition in all its meets. But our track and field men have shown great promise for the future, and records are expected to fall before the fleet feet of Bronson and Luebkeman and the mighty arm of Kendricks. Coach Carl Varrelmann led our cross country team through a grueling season. The harriers labored over the two-mile uphill course in three P.H.S.L. meets and the District Elimination Tournament. Although failing to win, the team gave a sure prediction of their success next year by their youth and unmatched enthusiasm.

For the first time in several years the Bowling Team enjoyed a successful season, placing third in the P.H.S.L. standings. A greatly increased student interest coupled with the efforts of Coach Varrelmann bolstered the team. Student keglers paced by Dan Baum also rolled over the faculty.

Led by returning lettermen Dave Buss and John Oettinger, the Eagle netmen had a successful season. During the past six years the Tennis team under Mr. Giacometti has compiled an amazing record, including ninety-nine straight victories. John Rauh and Tony Trabert won five straight state championships for Walnut Hills.

GOLF TEAM, ROW 1: R. Sheldon, A. Silverman, C. Glick, D. Wolf, B. Steel. ROW 2: R. Dice, D. Tschan, J. Picket, S. Silverman, B. Kern, D. Matthes, B. Behrendt, J. Dolbey.

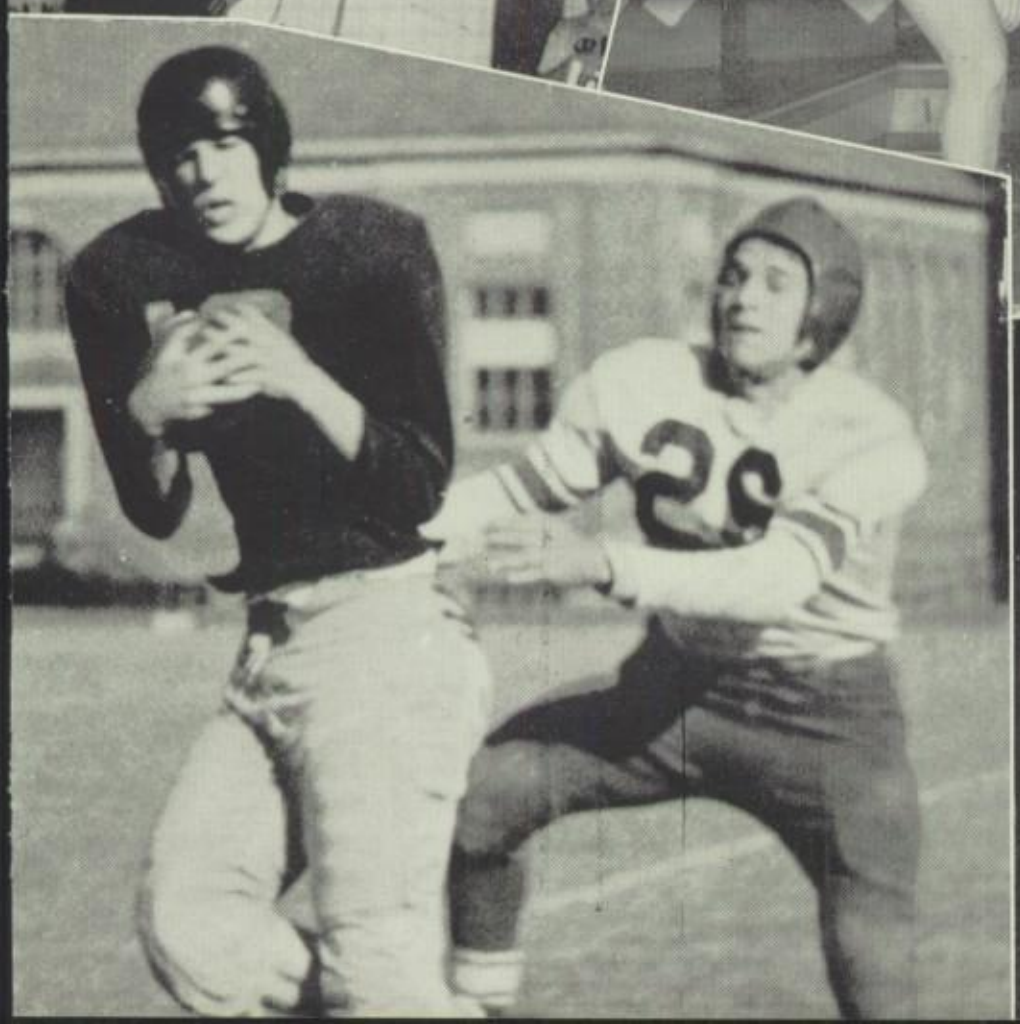
Under a new coach, "Whitey" Davis, and captain Stan Silverman, the Golf Team participated in twelve matches with various schools throughout the city. The team wound up the season by taking part in the Southwest Ohio District Tournament. Most matches were played at Losantiville.

"Touché!" The traditional cry of the foil wielders was heard for the first time at Walnut Hills during sessions of the new fencing club. Captained by Charles Atkins and advised by Mr. Varrelmann, the group met monthly in the orthopedic room for lessons and matches.

SPORT SNAPS



Sporting girls unite in G.A.A.

With over fifty per cent of the girls at Walnut Hills as members, G.A.A. needs a council to coordinate its athletic activities. Sixteen members, including officers and heads of sports, convene on alternate Wednesdays to choose managers, plan two seasonal banquets, and to organize after-school activities and "playdays." The possession of a G.A.A. emblem, symbolizing 1,500 points earned, is one of the association's highest honors. Chevrons and a bracelet can be won for outstanding achievement.

Teams compete in fall, winter sports

In the autumn months the southern athletic fields were in regular use for girls' field hockey while lower school girls played soccer. Armed with shin guards and sticks, 145 girls competed on intramural hockey teams. Over 110 players received points for their participation while enjoying healthful recreation.

Teamwork is essential in volleyball, and this cooperation was developed through practice by members of GAA. The girls were victors in the city-wide playday against five contending schools. The sophomores won the competition between the class teams, composed of members chosen from intramural squads.

Girls' basketball stresses teamwork

ABOVE: The skill of the Walnut Hills Basketball teams was proven by their victory at the city playday.

Over two hundred girls were active in basketball this year. The 1953 season began with after-school practices in late winter, followed by intramural games. Outstanding girls were selected to compete in class contests. Highlighting the season was Walnut Hills' capture of first place in the city-wide play day held early this spring. Miss Stagge and Miss Gradolf officiated at the games.

In the spring, girls' fancies turn to thoughts of—baseball. The coming of warm weather entices Walnut Hills students to try their hand at one of America's most popular sports. A regular springtime feature in the gym classes, baseball is also popular as an extracurricular sport. Many girls earn G.A.A. points participating in baseball practices and games.

Modern dancers exhibit grace

Leotards and modern interpretive dances are outstanding features of Dance Club at Walnut Hills. Every Wednesday the members meet and practice new techniques of rhythmic movement. The intra-city symposium and school assembly highlighted the club's activities under the guidance of Miss Hutchison and Gloria Cohen.

The Raggedy Ann girls were one of the highlights of the fall water pageant.

One of the accomplishments of the girls' swimming department was the water pageant produced with a cast of 100. The two performances featured a toyland theme. Swimmers who had passed their masters' test also participated on the honor swimming team. The lifesaving group met weekly during the winter to secure their Senior Lifesaving Certificates.

'Tennis, anyone?" Members of Tennis Club responding to this query won the spring playday for the third straight year under head raqueteer Carol Mayer. The club also completed a schedule with outlying schools.

CHAMPIONS OF INDIVIDUAL SPORTS, CLOCKWISE: Lois Roll, Jeanne Siphron, Carol Mayer, Barbara Holton, Carita Hopper.

Such sports as archery, ping-pong, and badminton are offered for individual competition among GAA members. About 54 "quiver" girls strove for bullseyes in fall matches. The winter table tennis tourney occupied 74 girls. Triumphing for the fourth successive year was ace paddle-pusher Jeanne Siphron. Spring saw the shuttlecocks sailing over the nets as the badminton season commenced.

Climaxing the activities of G.A.A. is the annual banquet. The chief feature of the evening is the announcement of the G.A.A. Ring Girl. This award is given on the basis of participation in G.A.A. and other school activities, scholastic achievement, and character.

Dear Bob-

I've known you ever since we were "iffis"
in Miss Stratemeyer's homeroom. You're progressed to be one of the most outstanding boys in our class. The very best of luck in everything.
I know you'll go far.

It has been terrific knowing you and sharing chemistry problems.
May you have lots of happiness

Bob – really
It was loads of fun being in band and orchestra.
I also enjoyed the American Way Institute (?) when you were the discussion group leader. Best of luck at school next year and Keep on plugging that bass. Remember it for we want to hear you lead off – use your form. :)
